Which Mapleson and Miner Split

The difficulty between Col. Henry Mapleson, proprietor of the Mapleson Opera Company, and Manager H. C. Miner, of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, who has declared that the contract by which Mapleson's " Fadette" was to come to the Fifth Avenue is null and void, has resolved itself into a very amusing word quibble. Col. Mapleson was in the city yesterday. Said he: "Mr. Miner wanted comic opera and he claimed that I had described . Fadette as comic opera, and he has discovered that it is nothing of the sort. I informed him that i had merely described 'Fadette' on opera comique. To this he replied that he had looked out the word combque in his French dictionary, and had ascertained that comique meant comic,' and that I had consequently misrep resented things. Of course, this is amusing and appoying as well. I shall not night Mr. Miner, I shall simply wait and take Fadette ' to Mr. Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera-House. There are no skirt dances and topical songs and Amazon's marches in radette, which, as you know, is the stand ard work 'Les Pragons de Villars,' I may also go down South, as I have an excellent offer to do so."
